1. A gasoline depot is located near the village of Zalog, eight kilometers from Ljubljana. A railroad spur of one kilometer connects the village with the depot.
2. Three tanks with a capacity of 10,000 liters each are housed in a shed. In addition, other seven tanks with a capacity of 20,000 liters each are sunk in the soil to a depth of 60 meters, with only a fraction of the tops showing above the ground. The gasoline, which is delivered to the depot from the refinery in Fiume by means of railroad tank cars, is for the use of the civilian population and is delivered to Kannik, Jesenice, Cernomelj, Slovenska Bistrica and Bled by gasoline trucks. The depot is guarded by members of the Militia.
3. A new gasoline depot is located in Dravljje, three kilometers from Ljubljana, across the street from the Litostroji factory. This depot consists of five large underground tanks with a capacity of 30,000 liters each, and is guarded by soldiers.
